Will it Possibly be that of the Murdered Garfield?

SOME VERY MYSTERIOUS THINGS

Threatening Letters are Received by the President—He is Followed by Detectives—The Tanner Incident.

This question was being asked more than once in official circles yesterday. When he left the city on Saturday for Deer Park his immediate companions were his son Russell and Congressman Grosvenor, of Ohio. The three were driven hurriedly to the Baltimore & Ohio station and were noticed by only a few of the waiting passengers as they hurried through the station and then out the side gate to the special car, which was in waiting. But all the way from the White House to the depot, the President's carriage was followed by a coupe, the driver of which kept his horses' nose almost touching the rear of the first mentioned vehicle. The President's party had not time to alight when two men jumped quickly from the coupe and hurriedly glided up and down the street and then in the direction of the station. One of the strangers noticed by the

It was learned to-day from trustworthy authority that the two mysterious members of the President's party were agents to see the President safely to Bismarck, and that their espionage did not cease until Mr.

Harrison had crossed the threshold of his cottage at the mountain resort.

For several days intimate friends of Mr. Harrison had been circulating a statement to the count of the bad feeling manifested in certain quarters over the Tanner case. Several of these friends, who were known to be in the President's mail, and Dr. Harrison's intimates by desperate and injudicious friends of ex-Commissioner Tanner have reached the President.

This matter has assumed so serious an aspect that it was thought best to take some action to prevent such a calamity as a rupture of the friendship between the President and the Commissioner. At a conference among the close friends of the President, it was decided to summon Mr. Harrison and make him acquainted with the situation. It was also decided that the arrival of the President, a reconciliation was held and the situation thoroughly dis-

At first the President refused to entertain the proposition to ensure the services of the colored men in the army by doing away with the soldier element of the country. But after a considerable time he was brought to see the irreparable injustice to cast such a reproach on them. But after the gravity of this situation was made plain to him, and the possibility of some half-fettered but, nevertheless, excited over the Tanager case, creating a scene, he agreed that his friends were right. He then decided to do the best, but cautioned them to avoid all publicity in their movements.

begin to abuse the President in loud tones, saying, among other things, that the Grand Army would get even with Harrison for his treatment of Tanager. The intruder was hustled out of the grounds, and the visitors about the building who were of an inquiring turn of mind were given to understand that it was "only a drunken man." Delectives were placed on duty Saturday morning, and while they were not engaged directly by the President or by any of his official family, he was aware of the steps that had been taken to protect him. Every effort is being made to keep the circumstances from the public.

MUSIC'S POWER.

Clara Louise Kellogg Speaks of the Beautiful Music She Heard at Balmuth.

[Special to THE HERALD—Examiner Dispatch.
PARIS, Sept. 17.—(Cable to the New York Herald.)—Clara Louise Kellogg Strakosch accompanied by her husband, Carl Strakosch, has just returned from an extended European trip, and is stopping at the Hotel Continental. In conversation with a Herald reporter she said: "Yes, I have been enjoying my summer and am feeling as well as possible. We have just come from lovely six- or eight- and before we had spent a couple of weeks climbing Swiss mountains, pulling about Swiss lakes and eating at Swiss tables' note. But the most delightful part of the trip was spent at Badreuth I never had heard, and never expect to hear again, such wonderfully beautiful music. There is certainly nothing like it in this world, and I doubt very much whether there is, in the next. No one can under-

"There is in the notes of La Fille du Tambour Majour a genius who has not listened to his operas as producers under his wife's direction. We hear 'Parisian' and I cannot describe the powerful effect it produced on me. I seemed to have been lifted out of myself."

(Special to THE HERALD)—Examiner Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—"La Fille du Tambour Majour" did not score a success at the Casino last night, but it did demonstrate an important fact—as a flesh reducer for ladies, tricycling cannot be beat. Miss Pauline Hall never has been so sylph-like since not even in the days when she was peared in Lock's operas at the Bank street theatre. "Now," says the Sun, "Miss Hall has become a very sylph." A metamorphosis so poetical as this may be the salvation of "The Drum Major."

Mr. Edwin Stevens, of California, is also in the cast, but he has not received very flattering treatment at the hands of the press.

thought to be the missing heir to a fortune of $5,000,000. The property was originally owned by his father and consists of real estate upon which the city of Logansport Ind., is located. He has employed counsel to prove his claims. The other heirs, to children in all, have already employed ex-Congressman Hall, of Delancey, O., to prosecute their claims.
